Rafael Nadal's body may be getting weaker, but his desire is not

One of the most remarkable traits of Rafael Nadal, Novak Djokovic and Roger Federer throughout their incredible careers has been the way they have maintained their hunger for titles and enthusiasm for the sport, no matter the obstacles.

5 The happiness on Nadal's face as he completed an incredible comeback to beat Daniil Medvedev in the final of the Australian Open told its own story. First, he needed a month and a half to recover from foot surgery, which left him wondering if he would even make it to Melbourne. Then, a month later, he had Covid, which also interrupted his preparations. Now, finally Nadal is back as champion and, for now, the most successful ever. He referred to winning his first grand slam at 19 at the French Open in 2005 as a "super-special moment, but when you're 35, and up until six weeks ago you did not even know whether 10 you would be able to play in the tournament, it is more emotional than the first one, no doubt about that," he said.

Nadal will now go to the French Open, where he has won the title an astonishing 13 times, with renewed confidence. Nadal's victory may also inspire Djokovic — the world No. 1 who beat him in Paris last year— to come back even stronger. Djokovic was unable to play at the Australian Open because of visa

15 issues due to not being vaccinated against Covid, so he will have a point to prove. But the way Nadal played throughout the Australian Open will surely convince him he has more grand slam titles to win.

"A month and a half ago, I didn't know if I was going to be able to be here. But you have given me the energy to keep trying to come back next year. Things can change quickly, but I feel lucky to have the chance to compete this way. It has been amazing for me and unforgettable. I feel confident that I'm going 20 to keep going, keep fighting and playing this sport that makes me happy."

Both Djokovic and Federer were quick to congratulate Nadal on social media. Their rivalry has pushed each other and though Nadal is top of the pile for now, he is too modest to say he is the best. "I will never say I deserve it," he said. "I don't care much if I am No. 1 or not. For me it's about enjoying nights like today; that means everything for me."

25 Asked what has taken him to this point, Nadal said: "Love for the game, passion, positive attitude and working spirit, along with the right people next to me, helping every single day." It's this remarkable humility that has been present throughout his career that has allowed him to accept the painful defeats and enjoy his many highs. On the evidence of the past two weeks, there is more to come.

Squid Game's creator: "I'm not that rich. It's not like Netflix paid me a bonus"

Hwang Dong-hyuk is laughing at me. I've just asked the creator of Squid Game, Netflix's hit show, if its astonishing success has made him rich. In the survival drama, a mysterious organisation challenges 456 players, who are all deeply in debt and desperate for money, to play a series of children's games. Win and they go home with $39 million. Lose and they get a bullet in the head.

5 "I'm not that rich. But I do have enough. I have enough to put food on the table. However, it's not like Netflix is paying me a bonus. Netflix paid me according to the original contract," Hwang remarks. "When I was working on the project, the goal was to rank No. 1 on the Netflix US chart for at least a day. But it ended up being much more successful, the most watched show on Netflix ever."

10 That seems unfair. After all, Squid Game has earned Netflix £650 million. Besides, creating, writing and directing the nine-episode series caused the 50-year-old South Korean film-maker so much stress that he lost six teeth in the process. "It was physically, mentally and emotionally draining. I kept having new ideas and revising the episodes as we were filming so the amount of work multiplied."

15 The idea for Squid Game came out of Hwang's own family situation in 2009, after the global financial crisis that hit his homeland hard. "My mother retired from the company she was working for; I couldn't work for about a year. We had to take out loans – my mother, myself and my grandmother," he explains. Hwang sought relief in Seoul's comic book cafes. "I read some survival game comics. I related to the people in them, who were desperate for money and success. If there was a survival game like these in reality, I wondered, would I join it to make money for my family? I realised that, since I was a film-maker, I could put my own touch to these kinds of stories so I started on the script."

20 Are you making a profound point about capitalism? "It's not profound! It's very simple! I believe the overall global economic order is unequal. We are living in a Squid Game world where we fight for our lives in very unequal circumstances," he remarks.

25 Hwang doesn't want to become just the Squid Game guy and is now negotiating with Netflix to screen three further movies he made in the past decade. But he certainly hasn't discarded a sequel – if only for one very materialistic reason. "It's possible that I have to do season two to become as rich as Squid Game's winner," he says with one last laugh.

1. Say whether the following sentences are TRUE or FALSE according to the text. COPY the evidence from the text. No marks will be given without the evidence. (1.5 points)

- a) In Squid Game, players participate for fun and enjoyment.
- b) Netflix has shared the immense profits from the series with Hwang.
- c) All the episodes of Squid Game were written before filming started.

2. ANSWER the questions below. COPY no more than 10 words and/or a number from the text to answer each question. (1.5 points)

- a) What was the price the Squid Game creator had to pay for making Netflix's most successful show?
- b) Where did Hwang find comfort during bad times?
- c) What is the reason why Hwang might make a second season of Squid Game?

3. FIND a word or expression in the text that means ... (1 point)

- a) objective (lines 1-8)
- b) country of origin (lines 9-19)
- c) take part in (lines 9-19)

Arriving home from the hairdresser's ...

- Your mum: What have you done to your hair?!!
You: (1) _____. Why?
Your mum: Why? Because it's awful.
You: Well, thank you very much. (2) _____
Your mum: Look at it. It's too long at the back and too short at the sides. It doesn't suit you.
You: That's not what my friends say. (3) _____. Anyway, I never criticise the way your hair looks, do I?
Your mum: Of course not because my hair is always perfectly normal.
You: Normal? (4) _____?
Your mum: Obviously, normal is normal! That's crystal clear. Go straight back to the hairdresser now and ask them to cut off all that hair at the back.
You: I'm afraid not, Mum. (5) _____
Your mum: But you can't go to school like that, and your father will go mad when he sees you.
You: Dad is much more modern than you. (6) _____
Your mum: And your teacher won't let you in the classroom with that haircut!

5. Read the following situations and WRITE what you would say in each one to show that you understand the context of the situation. Write between 10 and 25 words. (1.5 points)

- Your classmate comments that he's nervous about the English test tomorrow. Calm him down.
